
What printing presses yield England's Mail: Two Millennia of Letter Writing we think good store

But what is writ by hand we value more.

Translated from John Donne's Latin elegiac Doctissimo

Amicissimoque, by Edmund Blunden.

'When all else has been England's Mail: Two Millennia of Letter Writing said, narrative history depends especially upon letters, which England's Mail: Two Millennia of Letter Writing express opinions and directions at the time of writing.'

Sir Maurice Powicke, The Thirteenth Century, page 739.

To put your hand on a letter, to see its address panel and seal, to read the text and signature, is to come as close as England's Mail: Two Millennia of Letter Writing you can to the essence of our history.

Chapter on Sixteenth-Century Letters.

Front cover: Georg Gisze, London merchant, by Holbein. Letters hang in racks with a string holder, scales, crystal ball, seal, inkwell and quill pen. The Latin motto translates as 'No joy without sorrow'. The notice dated 1532 reads, 'The picture you see here records the features of Georg. Such are his lively eyes, such is his face.'
