wondering when they approach the game for the first time. She knows what mistakes they might make, explains baffling rules, and advises players on how to communicate with casino staff.

With humor and common Get Dicey: Play Craps and Have Fun sense, Tracy dispels the mysteries of casino Get Dicey: Play Craps and Have Fun craps, which, once understood, is actually quite elementary Get Dicey: Play Craps and Have Fun and very entertaining.

Introduction

The dice tables intrigue the casino visitor. Attended by rows of gently chirping video poker and slot machines, the dice game lounges like a sleeping dragon on its hoard of treasure. The colorful bank beckons with the promise of fast money.

But if you have ever strayed close enough to peep at the felt, the boxes of Get Dicey: Play Craps and Have Fun numbers and meaningless labels offered no hints about how to play. Stern commands such as “Come” and “Don’t Pass” looked more like an outline of dog obedience training than a fun activity.

Confronted by this puzzle, you consider more user-friendly games, but when you hear the collective roar from a craps game full of winners, Get Dicey: Play Craps and Have Fun your curiosity spikes. You want to be one of the happy people at the table. And, if the dice are hot, they are happy people.

Fortunately, the basic concepts of play are easy to learn, and if the gaming gods are willing, you will be collecting on odds bets and pressing place bets in a frenzy of action.

Get Dicey: Play Craps and Have Fun will teach you everything you need to know about playing the game along with the nuances of betting, game etiquette, and the numbers that explain the good and bad bets.

Just remember: there Get Dicey: Play Craps and Have Fun are six ways to make a seven.

This is a good thing.

This is a bad thing.

Table I.i The Craps Table

Players gather around the Pass Lines at the edges of the table. Base dealers stand at the rear of the game behind the boxed numbers, and a stick dealer stands at the front of the game in front of Get Dicey: Play Craps and Have Fun the proposition box. Players have direct access to the Pass Line, Don’t Pass, Field, Big 6, Big 8, Come, and Don’t Come. Other betting areas require interaction with the dealer in order to place bets.

Chapter One To Pass or Don't Pass

The great difficulty in learning any casino game during live action is that you will not always know why you were paid. Or, more commonly, why the dealer just snatched your money like a factory worker plucking defective product from the conveyor belt. Craps to the untutored player will be no exception. A little familiarization with the basic rules of craps Get Dicey: Play Craps and Have Fun will serve you well before throwing your money down that first time.

The Bare Bone Basics

The craps game will have five dice on the table, and the shooter will select two for play. By using two six-sided dice for play, all rolls will equal a number between two and twelve. The remaining three dice will be set aside in a bowl in front of the person working the stick. If one or both of the live dice land in the bowl during a roll, the dealer with the stick, who makes most game calls, will announce, "No roll, in the bowl," or any variation on that statement. When dice fly off the table, land in the table racks, or on top of the bank, the roll will be declared null as well. All other rolls of the two dice on Get Dicey: Play Craps and Have Fun the game surface will be valid.

When you first arrive at a table, the game will be at one of only two stages of play. The game will either be coming out or have a point number. The circular pucks on each end of the table indicate the stage of the game. When the black side of the puck is up, it will generally read OFF, which means that the table is coming out. If the white side of the puck is up, it will generally read ON, which means that the Get Dicey: Play Craps and Have Fun table has a point number.

The most commonly known aspects of craps take place when the game is coming out. Any roll that occurs when a game is coming out will be called a come out roll. Most bets on the table will be inactive at this time, and players will be betting on the pass Get Dicey: Play Craps and Have Fun line or don't pass line. A bet on the pass line will win on any roll of seven or eleven. The pass line bet will lose on any roll of two, three, or twelve. These are the craps rolls.

Table 1.1 Come Out Roll Rules for Line Bets

Pass Line Coming Out

Wins on seven Get Dicey: Play Craps and Have Fun and eleven

Loses on two, three, or twelve

Don't Pass Coming Out

Wins on two or three

Pushes on twelve

Loses on seven and eleven

The don't pass, as the name implies, Get Dicey: Play Craps and Have Fun is the opposite of the pass line, but not the exact opposite. A don't pass bet will win on any roll of two or three, but it will only push, which means neither win nor lose, on a roll of twelve. This is indicated by the statement Bar Twelve that is printed, usually as a pictograph, on the don't pass. When Get Dicey: Play Craps and Have Fun a seven or eleven rolls, the don't pass bets lose.

What happens when a four, five, six, eight, nine, or ten rolls? These rolls create point numbers. When one of these numbers Get Dicey: Play Craps and Have Fun rolls during the come out phase, it will become the game's point number. The dealer will then place the puck, white side up, on the specific number. A table remains on the come out roll until a point is established. Seven, eleven, and craps rolls in sequence will create a come out roll of multiple rolls. After a point number is marked, the craps rolls and eleven cease to affect the line bets.

At what stage you enter the game is up to you and does not truly matter. Most people wait to begin on a come out roll just to start fresh, and they have the advantage of winning on a seven on the pass line. The opportunity to win on a seven is your best bet. This is because the most common roll of the dice is seven. Because the possible dice combinations must consider the roll of each die, the dice have six ways to make a seven. One and six, six and one, two and five, five and two, three and four, four and three are the six combinations. Unlike many other bets in craps, the pass line bet on a come out roll only wins even money because the odds are so good.

When a point number is marked, however, a pass line bettor will no longer win on a seven. The object now is for the shooter to again roll the number that is marked before the seven rolls. It is important to note that you may not remove your pass line bet from play after a number has been marked. If the seven rolls before the point number, then the pass line and potentially many other bets will lose.

The seven rolling before Get Dicey: Play Craps and Have Fun the point number, however, produces a win for don't pass bets. When a point is marked, the don't pass bet becomes a wager that the seven will roll before the point number rolls again. If the shooter rolls the point number, then don't pass bets lose. Just like during the come out roll, the don't pass and pass line have opposite goals when the point is marked.

Table 1.2 Point Number Rules for Line Bets

Pass Line

Wins when the established point number (4, 5, 6, 8, 9, or 10) rolls again before the seven.

Loses when the seven rolls before the established point number rolls again.

Don't Pass Line

Wins when the established point number (4, 5, 6, 8, 9, or 10) DOES NOT ROLL before the seven.

Loses if the established point number rolls again before the Get Dicey: Play Craps and Have Fun seven.

When you consider that the seven is the most common dice combination, you may decide that the don't pass bet sounds good. You are correct, but do not forget all those sevens that a don't pass bet can lose on during the come out roll. Come out roll losses for a don't pass player can add up like a mortgage.
