The story so far:

The World of Faerel is a place crafted by the forces of Hell from the leftover bits of creation. In the time before time, The Great Creator employed a select host of angels to create and execute existence, a select order known as the Falfax. These angels created the first Earth, but the Great Hellion King of Faerel (World of Faerel Book 2) Creator was not impressed with their work. He destroyed it and cast out all of those who had worked so hard.

Hell accepted the Falfax. All but one. The angel Maltheus Falfax chose to distance himself from his brethren, a move that forever branded him as a traitor. An outcast from Heaven and an enemy to Hell, Maltheus Falfax hid in an interdimensional zone Hellion King of Faerel (World of Faerel Book 2) known as The Hallways, a place that exists neither on Earth nor Faerel but can touch both simultaneously.

Meanwhile, Hell employed the Falfax to create a world of their own, a place where they can manageably grow and harvest souls to arm themselves for the Final Conflict with Heaven. But the knowledge of the Falfax is limited. They are missing pieces and the world of Hellion King of Faerel (World of Faerel Book 2) Faerel is imperfect. In particular, the 'souls' of all its inhabitants are there, they just do not function. As Hellion King of Faerel (World of Faerel Book 2) Maltheus Hellion King of Faerel (World of Faerel Book 2) himself explains, "It's like they've been switched off." The net result is Hellion King of Faerel (World of Faerel Book 2) a world full of people whose souls are of no use to neither Heaven nor Hell.

There is a loophole. Something exists called the Destiny Scrolls. These are the actual blueprints for existence, secreted away by the Great Creator. It is whispered the knowledge contained in the Destiny Scrolls may allow Hell to fix the error in their own creation and restore energy to the souls on Faerel. Maltheus fears that if this happens Hell may be able to tilt the balance of power and jumpstart Armageddon. Hell must be stopped!

After centuries of searching, Maltheus believes he knows how to find the Destiny Scrolls. Unfortunately, Hell also learns this knowledge. To capitalize on this discovery, they resurrect an old enemy of Maltheus known only as the Hellion King, a former priest of the Dark Order who serves Hell. The Hellion sets out not only to find the humans, but (using his horde of walking dead) to settle some old scores as well.

The answer, it seems, lies in six shards of a star that fell when Maltheus Falfax first entered the plane of Faerel. United, Hellion King of Faerel (World of Faerel Book 2) these six shards form the heart of an Elysian Star, a rare star used by Supreme Beings to share knowledge. When placed into a device called Hellion King of Faerel (World of Faerel Book 2) a Goseck Wheel, this particular Elysian Star opens a gateway to the resting place of the Destiny Scrolls.

Maltheus is determined to find the scrolls before Hell does so that he can set the balance back in order. There is one problem. Only a human can possess a star shard. He searches through time, looking for the best candidates. Using criteria known only to him, he selects four very unlikely humans (there is a prophecy of The Four) and convinces them to enter the world of Faerel to search for the star shards. In return, he offers each of them a new life, and new health. In The Hallways, they are instructed to enter a doorway Hellion King of Faerel (World of Faerel Book 2) filled with shimmering light that will take them to a place called Arythria where Maltheus can properly prepare them for their journey.

Things go wrong.

Of the four selected, only one arrives. This is Hanna Strausen, the daughter of a wealthy industrialist who is stricken with an incurable form of cancer. While she waits for the others to arrive, she studies books and maps in preparation for the quest.
