Noir Favors

“How dare you?” he asked.

Wayne ‘the Bench’ Pulliam formed a question. He didn’t demand the answer, he must’ve genuinely wanted to know why little fish, Brandon Santos had asked him for a favor.

---

The Bench's eyes never left Brandon. But Brandon's darted any which way they could. Watching all the Bench's lackeys. They too wanted to know how Brandon could think asking for a favor had been a good idea.

"It's stupid," Brandon said with all the stability in his voice of a one legged giraffe. "Forget about it."

"I can't, I won't."

"Please?"

"He said he won't," one of the lackeys chimed in for good measure he also cracked his knuckles. The Bench simply gave Brandon a nod, pushed his bottom lip up and waited for Noir Favors a response with his left eyebrow raised.

"It was a favor for a friend. They asked me to ask you," then he added, "If it was for me I wouldn't dare, you know that?"

"Who?"

Brandon didn't give an answer right away, the delay called for two heavy palms to clench down on Brandon's shoulders. They were the Bench's. They were the kind of Noir Favors palms that sharpened fingernails. They rarely saw the sun, and if they did it was only Noir Favors because it was a woman that the Bench Noir Favors had to knock sense into.

One of the lackeys came up and whispered in the Bench's ears like a gnat. The Bench swatted him away and for a brief moment with only one palm on his shoulder, Brandon almost tipped over. Luckily the Bench returned his other palm with full force, and all nine of his fingers dug into Brandon's shoulder, or underneath it.

"For your lady friend?"

Brandon nodded trying to force a peaceful smile and bury his grimace.

"I know your lady friend."

The lackeys bother laugh. Brandon didn't need to know the joke; the punch line implied it all and Brandon wouldn't be laughing.

After the third punch, Brandon coughed and could taste blood, but the Bench hadn't seen any yet so he wasn't satisfied. Each blow filled Brandon with regret. He knew he should've kept his mouth shut. But there wouldn't be much of that left now.

ONE DAY AGO

---

“I Noir Favors can’t be there.” Brandon told his wife. She was hurting. It wasn’t for her; it was for their son. Brandon never came to any of his ball games. Sure he patted his son his back when he got home, but he never saw one game.

“Please?”

“Babe, you know I’m in Chicago all this week.”

There was silence on the other end of the call. Brandon waited for a snuffle or something to make him feel worse but he didn’t. He was working he couldn’t just fly back to Philadelphia, not now.

“Can’t you just ask him?”

“Why don’t you ask him? He’s your brother?” Brandon snapped.

“Never mind.” Her words Noir Favors were final, before she snapped back a moment later, “Did you want to talk to your son?”

The invisible shrug he made transcended the limits of a telephone call. His wife knew his answer.

“Goodnight, Brandon.”

THREE DAYS AGO

The Bench stared at his palms. He sniffed them and Noir Favors they smelled like bills. Then his door flung open and he almost jumped in his chair, which the thought of was enough to throw the big man into a fluster. He quickly smacked his fists on his desk and yelled:

“Knock damn it!”

The desk cracked a little beneath his fists. He eased back into his chair when he saw who it was. Bethany had hair like fire, and had to dress skimpy just to keep from sweating all day. Neither of which displeased the Bench. He almost let her walk all over him, but he Noir Favors Noir Favors knew women liked to be put in a place, any place, so long as it was a place she would fit.

“Where you been?”

Bethany laid her left thigh on the edge of his desk for his inspection, or at least the Bench accepted this as her intention. Noir Favors It looked softer than silk, which was good since the Bench had decided with his newfound power to start enjoying the finer things in life.

“You’ve been busy with all these boys from Philly so don’t ask me where I’ve been.” She tossed her head into a freshly pulled cigarette then turned it to the Bench as if he had a light.

The Bench held up a five-fingered hand: empty. Noir Favors Then he revealed his four fingered hand like a magician and held it empty.

“Don’t smoke in here.”

The cigarette fell Noir Favors from her ruby lips.

“Well I’m ready,” she said. “Any thing I can do to warm you up?”

The Bench wrapped his hands around her neck Noir Favors and pulled her in. He pressed his lips against her so hard he felt her teeth and she moaned as he cleared off the desk.

FOUR DAYS AGO

Bethany tugged the blonde wig then slid her leg back through a thigh high. It all seemed like too Noir Favors much effort and so after a deep groan she flung herself backwards onto the bed.

Brandon yanked his foot out of the way just in time and yawned.

“The Bench Noir Favors keeping you out late, you’re almost no good to me,” Bethany said. “Still Noir Favors you make it so I don’t want to leave.” She writhed in the sheets and inched her way up to Brandon’s waist where she folded her arms and laid her head down. Her ankles shot up into the air and waved back and Noir Favors forth.

“I just need a cup of coffee.” Brandon said thinking of the insatiable young woman on his bed.

“I just need you.” Her tone was playful and then that all disappeared, she corrected herself, she knew better. “I shouldn’t be saying that.”

Brandon saw his naked left hand running her wig; he removed it and the netting pinning down her natural red curls.

“Don’t.”

---

“Why? You’re married and I’m a whore.”
