The Masculinity Thief

by Cooper

It started when she took his necklace. They'd just made love, their bodies sweat The Masculinity Thief slick and flush, and as soon as he'd rolled off her and onto his back, she's climbed onto him, kissed him and reached her arms around his head, pressing her soft breasts into his chest.

"Babe," he said, pulling out of the kiss. "I need a minute."

She smiled as she sat back, slipping his chain link necklace from around his neck and fixing it around her own. "I'm borrowing this."

"Bullshit," Pete said, reaching up, but she giggled and hopped from the bed, sauntering away as she adjusted the necklace around her slender shoulders, giving him a good look at her perfect little ass and slender waist as she walked away, her pale white skin glistening. She had shoulder length auburn hair that bounced when she walked.

Pete felt drowsy, as The Masculinity Thief he always did after sex, but he propped himself up and said. "I don't even fucking know you."

"I always take a trophy from the guys I bang," the girl said, turning, a smart-alecky little smile on her face.

"Oh, is that what happened? Because I'm pretty sure I banged you."

"Whatever you have to The Masculinity Thief tell yourself, honey" she said, stepping into her underwear-- boyshorts, they were called.

"Come on. I love that necklace."

"Then you'll just have to earn it back," she said, slipping into her sports bra. Then she made a V shape with her fingers and licked the space between them with her little pink tongue.

"Yeah, right."

The girl smirked. Slipped into her t-shirt, jeans. Sandals. Checked her phone and then shoved it into her pocket.

"Come on," Pete The Masculinity Thief said. "Give it back. That thing cost me, like, 50 bucks." He was starting to get pissed, and wondering if this crazy bitch was going to force him to get up and take the chain back. She was just a girl, and looking at her little arms and slender little The Masculinity Thief body, The Masculinity Thief he knew it wouldn't be hard to make him give him back his necklace, but he was really tired, and who needed the drama? "Don't even think about walking out of here with..."

"You can have mine," the girl answered, tossing him a delicate gold chain, then she let herself, pausing at the door to look back over her shoulder and say, "Be good, babe."

Pete lay in bed, stupefied. He picked up the thin little chain she'd tossed to him, saw the figure The Masculinity Thief of an angel with sparkling wings dangling from the chain, sighed and lay his head back on the pillow. Angel? He thought. More like the devil. Without even thinking, he slipped the necklace around his neck and fastened it, then closed his eyes and drifted off to sleep.

Days passed. A week. He forgot all about the strange encounter until he took a girl home one night, and The Masculinity Thief as soon as he took his shirt off she said, "Fuck. You have a girlfriend."

"No. What makes you say that?"

"Dude, you're wearing her necklace."

Pete looked down, touched the angel. He'd forgotten he was wearing it, had been wearing it, every day since he'd slept with that... what was her name? "No. This is from someone I saw-- we actually only slept together once."

"So why are you wearing her shit?" The girl said, though she was still slipping out of her skirt.

"You want to fuck or what?" Pete said, deciding to take command. He grabbed her around the waist and started walking her toward the bed.
